STREET RAILWAYS.

Wonderful Progress Made in the Past Ten Years.

The progress of street railways in the United States is wonderful, says the San Francisco Bulletin, and most of it has come about within the past thirty-five years. There were scores of American cities without a block of street railway in 1860. In such cities as had street cars at that time the propelling power in all cases was horses. For ten years afterwards this was the only power in use. San Francisco was the that we do not have in stock. first to introduce the cable in Another thing you may be in er-1873. The cable was popular for ested in is an axe that will hold jobs. Now electricity is fast displacing the cable system, because it is the cheapest motive power or this service yet introduced. As to the street railway system of the United States, the Street Car Journal says: "There are 976 companies, with 13,588 miles of track and a capital and funded debt amounting to $1,300,139,711. The capital stock per mile of track is $55,000, and the funded debt per mile of track is $40,600, the total capital liabilities per mile being $96.600. Of the 13,588 miles of track, the motive power on 1,914 miles is horses, on 10,363 miles electricity, on 632 miles cable, and various on 679 miles. Practically the whole system is worked by electricity. The number of cars used is 44,745, or one for every 3.29 miles of track."

Popular Topics of the Day

Honolulu has as many machinists considering the population as any place we know of - and they're good machinists too, men who can take a steel rod and with the assistance of a lathe fashion it into parts for the most intricate machinery for an engine. To do this, of course, requires a knowledge of tools as well as the handling of them.

In our store room one department contains the most complete assortment of machinists, tools in the city. Look at them and you will find they are all of first quality (the price will give you the impression that they are thirds) every one of them shining like an African's heel. The assortment consists of hammers—all sizes and shapes from the cute little one used by the jewellers to the heavy one which the boiler maker uses in riveting the steel plates together. Then we have the Handy Pipe Wrench, a new device without a fault. This tool will be found a convenient one even in the house where none of the occupants are machinists. Hand vises for machinists can be had of us in every size manufactured, so can Pipe Vises and Cold Chisels. We have every thing used by metal workers in their trade.

Then we have a stock of carpenters wood working tools second to none in the city-first only in quality. You cannot call for a tool used by a carpenter a time, and many horses lost their | its edge-a new thing in axes and the house.

Bird cages have been mentioned in another paper; just here we will say that the stock we carry is complete.
